

Privacy Notice Procedure for the School Workforce at Wohl Ilford Jewish Primary School November 2024

Privacy notices must be concise, transparent, intelligible, easily accessible and free of charge. They must be written in clear and plain language. The privacy notice fulfils the school's obligation to inform. The notices must be honest – people must be informed of how their personal data is being used.

What is the right to be informed and why is it important?

The right to be informed covers some of the key transparency requirements of Data Protection Legislation. It is about providing individuals with clear and concise information about what you do with their personal data.

An effective approach can help you to comply with other aspects of the Act, foster trust with individuals and obtain more useful information from them.

Getting this wrong can leave you open to fines and lead to reputational damage.

What privacy information should we provide to individuals?

What you need to tell people differs slightly depending on whether you collect personal data from the individual it relates to or obtain it from another source. Annexes A to C are the template Privacy Notices for the school. These must be completed and published in a prominent position on the school's website.

Consent to collect data

The school will need to collect consent to use data where there is no legal basis, for example to use biometric data. An example consent form can be found in Annex D. Consent must be freely given, specific, informed and an unambiguous indication of the individual's wishes.

Privacy Notices and paper forms

Sometimes it is not possible to recreate privacy notices on printed material, such as on a consent form for school trips form. In instances such as this use the following statement:
